INTRODUCTION.

I asked my mother once who her grandfather was and she did not know. I asked my father the same question and he could not tell me. This first started me in my genealogical research some twenty-five years ago, and the following pages are the result. I know they are far from complete, but such as they are I cheerfully add them to the vast fund of human knowledge collected by those who have gone before me in the hope that they may be a stepping-stone to some one coming after who may want to know who their grandfather was. No one who has not entered on the same task can realize the amount of labor involved, and yet it has not been without its compensation. I have seen places I never would have thought of visiting; I have met people that I never would have met, forty-second cousins some of them, and now know not only who my grandfather was but who my great-great-grandfather was; and am happy to say while none of them make any claim to royal descent I have not found any murderers or horse stealers—mostly just plain, honest, industrious people, farmers, doctors and ministers, with here and there a lawyer.

Some of the early Todds migrated west and some south as far as North Carolina. Of those who went west was Levin Todd, a brother of Michael(3), and it has been strictly maintained by members of the family that Abraham Lincoln married one of his descendants, but this has been denied by a sister of Mrs. Lincoln, who claims their Todd ancestry was Irish and not English. Time, however, may prove different. We know that James Johnson, a son of Harmon, went to Greencastle and settled there and some of the Todds went with him. My grandfather was 83 when he died, and he has told me Mrs. Lincoln was a distant cousin. His brother, Michael, said the same thing, and I find the same impression among the Dorchester and Caroline Todds, who claim to have it from older members of the family.

The great difficulty I have found is to get people to answer letters, or, if answered, to get information desired. They will not or cannot give dates. The old Bibles that should have a record are gone. One particularly that I sought, said to contain records back to the earliest Todds, came into the hands of one who thought so little of it he threw it in a closet and the mice destroyed it. Another record was taken West, and repeated letters for a copy of its record were never answered.

Many of the old graves I found without a headstone and the place overgrown with briars. Occasionally the plot in some neglected corner of a field would have a boulder with the initial "B. T., 1837," for Benjamin Todd died 1837. One lonely grave in a field did have a headstone; the occupant of the farm had ploughed as close as he dared, and that stone alone saved it from being obliterated entirely. I was promised that the stone would be removed to some churchyard, and why should it not? When the man died they found over a bushel of coins, silver and gold, hidden in various parts of the house, yet this had not been sufficient to buy him a Christian burial.

I trust I may be pardoned for any errors that may exist, and I have no doubt there are a few, but I took facts as given me and spelled names according to the whim or fancy of those who gave them.

As my mother was indirectly the cause of my starting this search, it is no more than fitting to her I dedicate the result.

JOHN R. WITCRAFT.

TODD.

The name Todd is an altered form of the Scotch word Tod, which means fox.

With a single exception the Todd's have all come from the Highlands of Scotland.

The original name of the Irish Todd's was O'Shanaugh, which is Irish for fox. In consequence of an early English Parliament, which compelled the Irish to assume English names, the family changed its name, the Leinster branch taking the name of Fox and the Northern Todds' of Wolfson, corrupted into Wilson.

It appears from this that a portion of the Irish Todds are of Irish origin. All other Todds are Scotch.

Dod-Todd also means Dear, a root having the meaning of affection or fondness.

Old German, Dod, Dodd, Doda (wife of the Frankish king Theodebert), Toda, Totta, Tozo, Toze (sixth century Anglo-Saxon), Dodda, Dudda (Bishop of Winchester), Totta (Bishop of Leicester), English, Dodd, Todd, Doddy, Tottey, Dutt, Duddy, Dozy; Modern German, Dooe, Tode, Tott, Todt; French, Dodo, Dode, Dothee, Toty; Gothic, Thindo, means people's ruler.

The Scottish Todds originated south of the Firth of Tay and the Clyde. They have come to this country by three different channels.

First, there are the Scotch Todds, which have come directly from Scotland.

There have been several distinct emigrations of this kind. One of the most important of them was that of Adam Todd, who arrived in New York near the beginning of the eighteenth century, still wearing the kilt and tartan.

The first wife's name is not known. His second wife was Sarah Cox, whom he married August 8th, 1744. He died in New York about 1765. They had:

Margaret, Adam, James and Sarah.

Margaret married Capt. William Whettan.

Adam married Margaret Dodge, who was a daughter of Jeremiah Dodge and Margaret Vanderbilt.

James died young.

Sarah married, about 1785, John Jacob Astor, who became one of the richest men in the United States.

Next are the Irish Todds. In the early part of the last century, prior to 1740, Hugh Todd and Jeannette, his wife, settled in Pennsylvania.

John Todd in 1679 fled from the persecutions of Claverhouse in Scotland to find refuge in Ireland. Two of his sons or grandsons, Andrew and Robert, came with their families to America in 1737.

Robert was born in Ireland in 1697. His first wife is supposed to have been a Smith. His second wife, Isabella, sister of Major William Bodley. Their mother was a Parker. By his first wife he had:

John

David

By his second wife he had:

William

Andrew

Robert

Samuel

Levi

Elizabeth

Mary

Rebecca

Sarah

Into this branch of the Todds, President Abraham Lincoln married.

Lastly, there are the English Todds, who have come to this country by the way of England, where they have been known at least as far back as the eleventh century. Upon their entrance into England some of the Todds seem to have retained their Scotch name, while others exchanged it for its English equivalent. Hence the Todds and Fox's have always borne the same arms.

The Todds seem to have settled first in Yorkshire, where the name is common to this day.

There was a John Todd, who was High Sheriff in 1390; also a Sir William Todd, who was High Sheriff in 1477 and Lord Mayor ten years later.

There are three distinct families of the English Todds. One of these sprung from an ancestor by the name of Robert, who came over in the Hopewell in 1622 and settled in Virginia and had a son William.

A Captain Thomas Todd, who may or may not have been related, is recorded to have come later, in 1640; about 1669 he brought his wife, Ann Gorsuch, and children:

Ann

Frances

Johannah

John and

Robert

Although in his will he names only one son, Thomas, besides his daughters. Captain Thomas is recorded to have first come over in 1640, and it is possible he may have been a son of Robert, and married in England, bringing his wife and family over later.

He brought over with him on various trips others of the Todd family, as follows:

Cornelius, in 1654.

Francis, in 1658.

David, in 1659.

Robert and Elizabeth, in 1665.

Alexander, in 1666.

Thomas and Francis, in 1670.

Richard, in 1671.

John and Jane, 1674.

These all appear to have settled in Virginia.

In his will Thomas Todd mentions a brother, Christopher. Whether any relation existed between him and the Christopher Todd who settled in New Haven, Conn., in 1639, is not known, but it is said that Christopher Todd and John Todd, who came to Charlestown in 1637, were cousins.

John Todd, who settled first at Charlestown and later at Rowley, Mass., and married, in 1643, Susanna Hunt, was born at Bradford, Yorks, in 1621, and was the son of John, born at Pontefract, Yorks, October 18, 1594; married Alice Clayton, of Bradford, Yorks, 1620. He was the son of William, of Pontefract, Yorks, who married Isabella Rogerson, September 24, 1592, probably son of Reginald Todd, freeman of York, 1605, and collateral descendant of Sir William Todd, Lord Mayor of York, 1487.

Christopher Todd, of New Haven, Conn., was descended from the same line. His father, William, was born June 29, 1593; married Katherine Ward, May 22, 1614.

Christopher was baptized January 12, 1617.

William Todd was the son of William Todd and Isabella Rogerson, married September 24, 1592, and had William, bap. June 29, 1593, and John, bap. October 18, 1594.

John married Alice Clayton, as stated, and had John, who married Susanna Hunt, while William married Katherine Ward, May 22, 1614, and had:

Christopher, baptized January 12, 1617. Therefore, Christopher's father, William, and John's father, John, were brothers, so Christopher, of New Haven, Conn., and John, of Rowley, were cousins.

There was a Michael Todd, of Dorchester County, Md., as early as 1690, who may have been a son of Christopher, born June 15, 1653, although the Rev. John Todd claimed this Michael married Elizabeth Brown. Their children were born so late, up to 1700 and later, and as his widow married twice after, I am led to think he was a grandson of Christopher and not a son that married Elizabeth Brown. True, he may have married late in life, as Michael, of Dorchester, undoubtedly did, because of his wife, Margaret Insley, we have no mention until 1690, when her father, Andrew, deeds land to Michael for love and affection and small consideration and names him as his son-in-law. Michael died in 1730, and was then ancient and infirm, which would bring the date of his birth about 1653. Judging from the names somewhat singular and similar, I am led to believe that the Virginia and New England Todds are related—that Robert who came over in 1622 was followed later by younger generations of the same family.

Among other early settlers of Todds are Andrew, of Hingham, m. December 16, 1740, Susanna Hubard; died May 1, 1773, aged 55. Sea captain and farmer and had:

Susanna, born February 15, 1740-1; married, October 24, 1757, Ephraim Marsh.

Jane, born December 13, 1743; married October 29, 1761, Eliah Kingman.

Samuel, born April 3, 1746.

Hannah, born February 5, 1748-49; married October 17, 1769, Elijah Loving.

James, born July 18, 1751.

John, born January 1, 1764; died unmarried; was a blacksmith.

Colonel Andrew Todd, son of James and Rachel (Nelson) Todd, married Beatrix Moore and had eight children:

James, born August 1, 1720; died unmarried.

Samuel, born June 3, 1726; married, 1st, Hannah Wallace, and 2nd, Ann Cochran.

Mary, born July 3, 1728.

Alexander, born June 2, 1730.

Rachel, born April 14, 1733; married Moses Morrison.

John, born April 18, 1735; drowned at Amoskeag Falls, aged 24.

Jean, born March 9, 1736; married William Miller, of Petersborough.

Andrew, born January 11, 1738; never married.

James and Andrew Todd, two brothers, Scotch-Irish, emigrated about 1749 to America from Longford, Ireland.

James Todd married Jemima and had:

James Alex., married and had:

David

James, born about 1760; married March 23, 1784, Jane Martin (daughter of Alex.) and had:

Alexander, born 1785; died May 6, 1849, unmarried.

John

William, married Catharine Hand, daughter of Jonathan.

Sallie, married John Norton and had a son Thomas.

James, Jr., unmarried.

Anne married John Nesbit (son of James).

Joseph

John, born 1730; died April 23, 1802; came with parents from Longford, Ireland, 1749, when about 23 years of age.

Andrew had:

Samuel

TODDS OF THE EASTERN SHORE, MARYLAND.

Being an account of the descendants of Michael Todd and Margaret Insley, daughter of Andrew Insley and Mary Jones.

Michael Todd is supposed to have been a son of Christopher Todd, of New Haven, Conn. He was a shoemaker by trade, and early formed a partnership with John Gooty. He married somewhere between 1692 and 1698 and died in 1730, when he was ancient and infirm. He names in his will the following children: Michael, Benjamin, James, Elizabeth Dean, Dorothy Cole and Ruth.

Michael (2) married Mary and had Michael (3), had Levin, born June 24, 1743; William, born May 4, 1746; David, and probably others.
